PREFACE

Through this pictorial review of the year 1931-1932, the MAROON staff hopes to carry you back into the imaginings of your childhood, and similarly, in years to come, to remind you of happy times at Champaign High School.

Fairy story

Because we would like to show our appreciation for his four years' unfailing support and interest in our every activity, because he has proved himself a true friend to faculty and student body, the class of 1932 sincerely dedicates its MAROON to

MR. CARL W. ALLISON,
Principal

"The kindly landlord took them in, every one, although the house was already full"

THE FRONT ENTRANCE

"So Peter ran along to a spot where he could command a good view of Jenny Wren's old home, down by the old stone wall."

THE EAST WALK

"The little elf answered, 'This is my house and yours; where we are to live together.'"

THE WEST SIDE OF C. H. S

"The little tailor looked around and thought, 'There is more elbow room here than in my workshop.'"

THE EAST LAWN

THE SHOEMAKER AND THE ELVES

A shoemaker the tiny elves helped to make his shop
the wee's little shoemaker did to do the shoes more quickly and more nicely than the shoemaker could have done.

Often during the gloomy days of winter when the little shoemaker's feet were cold and his work was slow.

Mr. V. L. Nickell

Mr. Nickell has this year continued to demonstrate his genuine interest in high school activities, particularly rendering valuable support to athletics.

In addition he has established himself as a force for community stability, indicating his belief in a connection between academic life and everyday affairs. As we continue on our way, Mr. Nickell's sane judgment and firm guidance during a period of stress will become for us a pattern of action in similar crises.

Mr. C. W. ALLISON

With the increased enrollment of the school, the work of Mr. Allison has been doubly hard. His exceptional executive ability is responsible for another successful year—for progress in scholastic standing and for achievement in the various extra-curricular activities of C. H. S.

Among the plans of the administration has been the one of helping students of Champaign High School to find their life's work. For this purpose a series of vocational guidance lectures was instituted.

The publications staffs, especially, wish to thank our principal for his understanding of our difficulties and his invaluable aid.

MISS ELEANOR CHAFFEE

In her eight years at Champaign High School, Miss Eleanor Chaffee has established the office of vice-principal as a sure place of constructive aid and cordial interest in all student projects.

She daily solves many problems, each demanding the concentration of her entire ability and sympathy. Students find themselves in later years looking back with a sudden realization of her wise provision for their unchallenged continuation of work at colleges and universities.

From day to day her office remains a dependable source of encouragement

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK

The marvelous tale of "Jack and the Beanstalk" is a childhood memory of each high school student how he timidly approached the magic beanstalk, doubting his ability to climb it, his surprise at finding that it required only the strength of his arms and a consuming desire to discover what might be found at the top, and his ultimate satisfaction in making off with a precious treasure. And might not this same high school student be reminded of his four year quest for a reward just as valuable as Jack's prize?

CINDERELLA

As you see the prince fitting the glass slipper on the tiny foot of Cinderella - at yet not glimpse the expression of wonder and happiness on the beautiful face of the future princess - just as the tiny slipper brings a great change in her life - so a rare diploma opens new vistas of service for all eager, happy throng of Servers.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

Claiming the largest class in the history of the school, 431 freshmen started on their high school career with Billy Wiese, president, Jean Gardner, vice president, and Carol Fletcher, secretary-treasurer, leading the way.

BILLY WIESE
President

The first event of the year was the Freshman-Sophomore Depression Carnival at which affair Mary Jane Alexander and Charles Romine won the freshman popularity contest.

Christmas time brought the annual Christmas tree decorating. Mary Jane Alexander, Anita Knapp, Charles Romine, and Joe Yaw were the president's choice for the committee.

Throughout the year the freshmen served the school by putting on a number of interesting assemblies.

JEAN GARDNER,
Vice President

JACK THE GIANT KILLER

In all the history of Fairydom, there was never such a hero as Jack, the Giant-Killer. Whenever there was something to be done, difficult and perilous though it might be, Jack was asked to do it. Throughout his brilliant career, the Giant-Killer made his life one of service.

While our athletes will not be called upon to rid the country of Giants, they will always be found in the front ranks of successful competition. They have shown themselves equally as skillful as Jack Competition in sports is only as vicious to Chambray High boys. As the mighty Boots gave Jack courage and vigor, the extensive program of boys' athletics develops physical prowess, initiative, and tenacity of character.

LESTER MOYER

Some ten years ago there came to Champaign High School a new athletic instructor. He was to assist John Van Liew, highly successful athletic director. Two years later Van Liew left and Lester Moyer, his able aide-de-camp, took over the local athletic reins.

Champaign has been in an athletic decade under Moyer and winning has left its mark, not only on the four well-filled trophy cases, but likewise on the ever-increasing army of boys who have competed under his

COACHES

In the role of athletic director, Moyer has been blessed with efficient assistants for the past two years. Roy Swindell takes care of swimming and golf. Bill Clark coaches cross-country and track. Carl Kluever handles the yearlings in football as does Heber Rumble in basketball, in addition to coaching tennis. Ray Esworthy is assistant in football, baseball and basketball. Chuck Redmon augmented the staff this year, taking care of the newly formed wrestling team.

type that made them subsequent Big 12 champs. Junior Petry, sophomore in the Moyermen backfield, took a pass from Karl Grolla for the only Maroon tally. This game, incidently, marked the second annual Booster Club Homecoming.

Gene Harrison's Kankakee eleven provided the non-conference competition the next week-end at Kankakee. The weather was a vital factor in this engagement for in a pouring rain, the Maroons fought out a 13-7 win.

On their own field the next Friday night, an improved Danville team got a 7-7 tie with the Moyer cohorts.

After a discouraging postponement due to a giving rain the Champaign football team again turned back Urbana, this time 13-6. The game was played on the Champaign McKinley field, November 19. This was the initial conference set back of the season for Urbana. Ott Zimmerman returned to the Maroon lineup with his ankle still heavily bandaged and played one of the greatest games of his three years of high school competition. The Moyermen looked like a rejuvenated eleven and started driving from the first kick-off. The first points came when Zimmerman plunged over from the two yard line after an intense aerial barrage. Grolla made the extra point from scrimmage. The Urbana touchdown came in the third quarter after they had held the ball on the Champaign three and four yard lines several times. Russ James got the other score in the final quarter by intercepting an Urbana pass.

Somewhat of an anti-climax was the game with Spalding in Peoria on Thanksgiving morning. The Maroons won 9-6 with nearly all the squad playing. It marked the swan song for 13 football lettermen and the nucleus of the squad will therefore need to be replaced.

Champaign-Lindblom Rivalry Renewed

During the season the Moyermen accounted for 96 points while their opponents were getting 86, their percentage of games won was .600 in the conference. In all they won five games, lost three and tied one. On the all star team of the Big 12 Conference were Ernie Glenn and Captain-elect Karl Grolla. Ed Reid, Bennie Pfeifer and Ott Zimmerman received mention. So ended Lester Moyer's tenth season as purveyor of football knowledge at Champaign.

FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE FOOTBALL

The Freshman-Sophomore football team, handicapped by the lack of experience, went through a poor season to win but one contest. Most of the team members were freshmen and so Carl Kluever could do little but build for next year. One or two promising boys were developed, though, and for the first time in some seasons the team boasted considerable weight.

Kluever named 13 boys for numeral awards. From these, three or four should move up a step or two next year to the reserve or varsity squads. The numeral winners were Don Arbuckle, Carl Cannady, Willard Anderson, Frank Larabee, Erol Sparks, Raymond Scott, Jim McDonald, Richard Cagann, Richard Sizer, Ralph Dab, Jack O'Byrne, Gilbert Campbell and Carl Wyatt.

All of these boys will be available for competition for several seasons to come and are expected to develop accordingly.

Games won—12 Lost—13. Pet. .500

Working up to a big climax and then abruptly dropping again, the 1932 Champaign High basketball team won half of its games and established itself as one of the most unusual in the school's history.

Before the season started, great things were expected of them. They started off with a close loss to Mattoon but came back to win their next two games. After taking one from a weak Riverton team, they went into the depths to emerge with a winning streak at the close of the schedule that rivalled the 14 game losing record the Maroons put up at the close of the 1932 season. Bill Spence became ineligible at the end of the first semester and the week prior to the district Captain Ed Reid and Elba Bales, up till then on the first five, were dropped for breach of training, and a decidedly mediocre Fisher team took their measure in the first round of the district tourney at Urbana.

Perhaps the peak of the season was reached when the Maroons wiped out Danville in the second game of the year between the two schools, 47-25. Until the first half had nearly expired, the Danville boys failed to count a single field goal. The Maroons also looked very good in their win from the Rantoul state finalists, 27-22. Urbana split even with the locals, winning the first encounter, 22-11; and then losing the last contest, 20-17 despite a sharp rally in the closing minutes.

Ed Reid led the season's scoring. He annexed 129 points and hence had a slight edge on Max Peterson with 123. In third place was Bales with 111 and Grolla with 88 was fourth. Hawkins had 54 counters and Burt Shauger with 34 and Jack O'Byrne with 25 came next. Peterson led on a percentage basis with slightly better than 40 percent of his shots going through the hoop. All in all, the Maroons scored to their opponents.

When Ed Reid was dropped, Burt Shauger was elected captain for the remainder of the season. At the close of the season Max Peterson was named to head the Moyer-men next year. Letters were awarded to Irle, Captain Burt Shauger, Max Peterson, Louis Irle, Jack O'Byrne, Joe Ponder and Wayne Hawkins.

PONIES

Champaign High's Ponies, a team innovated four years ago by Heber Rumble in his initial year here, again accounted for a successful season. With competition keener than in several years they managed to win 14 games while losing 10. The team was built up of nearly all new material since only Bob Castelo and Roy Williams had any degree of experience last year.

The lineup most frequently used brought Castelo and Buswell at forwards, Williams at center, and Smith and Livett at guards. First relief was offered by Chuck Smith, Ken Idleman, Carl Canady, Dick Cagann, and Frank Larabee. Jack Hodge, Junior Petry, and Darwin Lierman also saw a good bit of competition during the year.

The Ponies gained several important decisions. The main one of these was the one the Rumblemen took from the Urban freshmen-sophomores in their second encounter in the University Gym by a 22-21 count. In their first meeting the Eastsiders won 21-13. The Ponies also got revenge from Mattoon seconds by 27-12 for the one defeat afforded the locals in 1930-'31.

At the conclusion of the season they played good ball to win their last three contests. The last of these was a 48-14 conquest of St. Joe. They split even with their old rivals, John Hill Jr. High and Roosevelt both of Decatur.

Another new feature Rumble tried was a junior league system whereby two divisions of the team were dividing the practice time. From the under league Rumble hopes to make the major part of his first team next year. The higher division, with a little more experience is expected to make the major part of the varsity positions. At the close of the season, Castelo and Buswell were already playing some with the first squad.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

One of the most successful seasons of intramural basketball from the standpoint of boys participating and closeness of play was held this past year when the school board gave permission to play the games on Monday and Thursday nights, and hence go back to the plan of several years ago.

Bill Marsteller took charge of the play for the third season, with Don Dunham as his assistant. In the heavyweight league, the Boosters won out after a loss to the Eagles. Second place was a five way tie. In the lightweight division a play off was necessary with the Treble Clefs winning the laurels.

The All-star selections of the officials follows: Heavyweight division: Wardell Isley, Bob Doty, Owen Gilbert, Clarence Holmstrom, Wesley Merrill, Bill Schroyer, Charles Connover, and Harold Cates; lightweight division: C. Vaughn, Mac Brubaker, Cleo Johnson, Francis Barrett, Lloyd Smith, Bill Lewis, Hiram Cook, and Junior Rigdon.

SWIMMING

Breaking four tank records and winning a majority of their contests, Coach Roy Swindell's 1932 swimming team established itself as one of the best in the school's history.

The team's record was four wins, three losses and third in the conference meet. As the end of the season neared, they began to better their performances, trimming Peoria Central who had previously beaten them and showing up much better against Danville than in the Vermillion County pool.

The locals annexed 227 points to their opponents 192. They won from Streator, 28-22; trounced Urbana, 46-14; lost to Peoria Central in Danville, 33-26 and 50-10 respectively. They then swamped Urbana again, 48-12; surprised Peoria, 37-23; and lost to Danville, 38-22. In the Big 12 Conference meet, the Swindellmen took third with the two relay teams, Mulliken and Russell taking places.

In the second meet with Peoria Central three tank records were set. The free style relay team set a record of 1:10 with Captain Foote, Mulliken, Reeves and Scoggin swimming. In the medley event Watts, Fosnaugh and Scoggin hung up a mark of :59.2 and Mulliken negotiated the 100 yard free style in :18.3 to create another new mark.

The roster of the squad, including all natators that participated in any of the meets is: dives—Russell and Petry; breast stroke—Watts, Casper and White; breast stroke—Morton and Louks; the style—Foote, Mulliken, Reeves, Scoggin, Anglin, Savage and Louks.

WRESTLING SQUAD

An entirely new sport was placed on the Champaign High athletic ledger after it had been tried wholly as an intramural sport the year before. The wrestling team, certainly conference champions if any championship award would be made, put up an enviable record to shoot at, winning all three inter-school meets held.

All the meets were against Danville, like Champaign, one of the first schools in Central Illinois to include this sort of athletics. The Danville boys became increasingly strong, however, forcing the Maroons to the utmost in the last two of the meets.

The Champaign lads were coached by Chuck Redmon, a member of the Illinois grappling squad. His success in this position was surprising and he will probably be in charge of the locals again next year when he is planning a more extensive chart of meets.

In addition to the regular schedule, Redmon kept about 35 boys engaged in intramural competition. His organization was in the form of a club, meeting Tuesdays and Wednesdays during the club period.

In the first meet Champaign took the measure of Danville 26-10. Chuck Hall, Morris Bender, Tyke Campbell, Francis Leach, Marvin Hout, and Lyle Nelson won their matches. The second meeting was in the Vermillion County gym, the Redmon charges winning again. The third meet went to Champaign when Danville fell in the local haven by a close 23-20 score. In this contest Tyke Campbell, Lauren Turner, Francis Leach, Clarence Helmrath, and Marvin Hout won their division titles.

VARSITY BASEBALL

With prospects of having one of the best teams in some years, the Champaign Baseball squad won one game and tied two games with their strong rivals from Bloomington, Trinity, and one of these games was awarded to the Maroons. ... Armstrong was subdued 13-1. Trinity fought out a 8-8 deadlock in Bloomington on April 15 and then played another 5-5 tie here the next Saturday. ... and so the game was tied 1-1 to Champaign by the umpire.

Last season the Moyermen won nine games while losing five. Streater proved to be the enigma of the locals, decisively trouncing them twice. Letters were presented to Captain Bob Blaisdell, Art Arnold, Courtney Cole, Ray Danielson, Wally Foote, Karl Grolla, Wayne Hawkins, Marvin Hout, Maurice Hurst, Bill Lierman and Ed Reid.

GOLF TEAM

In 1931 the Champaign Golf team failed to set any startling record of victories, losing all but one of their contests. The one victory was a win over the Danville squad by a large margin.

Some optimism was displayed at the close of the season, however, for two lettermen returned for this year's competition and several other boys who had played some were back for more play also.

Don Dobbins, Ralph Knudson and Herman Stitcher qualified for the state finals with scores of 78, 78, and 88 respectively. In the finals they failed to place. In the Big Twelve tournament the squad placed fifth and Dobbins with 88 tied for fourth individual.

Letters were awarded to Don Dobbins, Herman Stitcher, Gordon Stiritz, Ralph Knudson and Tom Bradley. Bradley was elected captain for the 1932 season.

Varsity Track

Promising to be one of the best track teams in several years, Bill Clark's charges won two quadrangular meets and lost a close dual meet to Urbana. Urbana was in both of the other two meets, however, so the Maroons have a two-to-one advantage over them for the season thus far.

Ott Zimmerman is captain of the team this year and is the outstanding sprinter on the squad. In the dual meet, held at the Urbana McKinley Field, the Eastsiders took the last event of the day deciding the meet. The points were 60 for Urbana and 57 for Champaign.

At Danville the Clark Proteges won a night meet with 24 markers, Urbana had 21, Danville 14 and Mattoon 7. Firsts were scored by Elba Bales in the discus and shot and by the 440 yard relay team.

Ray Moore, Roy Williams, Ott Zimmerman, Russ James, Don Dunham, Elba Bales, Homer Bash, Sid Brewer, Lloyd Sheahan, Jewett Cole, Harold Kirk, Lauren Turner, Karl Grolla, Burt Shauger, Homer Upton, Cliff Siler, Paul Pickens, and Marvin Hout, composed the personnel.

The remainder of the schedule:

C CLUB

Under the guidance of Burt Shauger, the C Club, Champaign's organization of lettermen, added to its activities this year and had a larger membership than in several years, possibly for all time.

At the beginning of the season there were eleven active members of the club and quite a number more were initiated later. The actives at the beginning of the year were Wayne Hawkins, Ray Danielson, Bill Marsteller, Ernie Glenn, Ed Reid, Marvin Hout, Joe Moll, Wallace Foote, Karl Grolla, Clarence Helmrath, and Otto Zimmerman.

Other boys initiated included Burt Shauger, Tom Bradley, Lauren Turner, Bob Doty, Arnold Cagann, Owen Ray, Leo Kagan, Bob Russell, Al Mulliken, Bennie Pfeifer, Elba Bates, Charles Petry, Bill Lierman, Harold Kirk, Courtney Cole, Charles Scoggin, Jewett Cole, Lyle Nelson, and Francis Leach.

The major accomplishment of the C Club this past year has been the selling of tickets to athletic contests. As a reward for this, the Athletic Association sponsored a banquet during the club period in the early part of March.

The C Club assembly was held in February and the members-to-be were required to participate in a stunt. For this entire day the pledges were dressed as women and highly painted and groomed. In April the club took a series of physical tests to aid in the gathering of a thesis of a graduate student in physical education at the University.

The vice-presidency was taken care of by Clarence Helmrath and Ernie Glenn served as secretary-treasurer. Club meetings were held on Tuesdays during the tenth hour.

BASKETBALL

When the Girls' Basketball season was brought to a climax by the final game being played at the Freshman-Sophomore carnival, June Scott with her Sophomore team won from Pauline Dieckman, captain of the Freshman team by a score of 48-2.

The Freshman as well as the Sophomore classes played the round-robin style of tournament which was one in which the team having the most victorious games credited to her schedule receives the championship.

Even though the Sophomore classes have had more practice and instruction than the Freshman classes, the Sophomores found that it required much skill and technique in their playing to be able to make their plays count when battling with their opponents—the Freshman classes.

The third hour team of which Joan Cushing was captain won from Helen Curzon, Roma Smith, and Genevieve O'Herron of the Freshman class. Virginia Gordon of the Sophomore class defeated Nesbit Roe, Kathryne Kemp, and Francis Grant.

THE GOOSE GIRL

As the faithful little goose-girl firmly clutched her precious, yellow goose she soon found herself followed by a number of people who could not get loose after they had once touched her pet, and there they all were--trailing along behind in a procession.

In much the same way, organizations of every nature, both for work and play are formed by those who are interested in one goal—not a yellow goose, but rather some real value for the fuller enjoyment and appreciation of their high school opportunities.

PUSS-IN-BOOTS

Puss in Boots, transformed from an ordinary cat to a creature of unusual powers, conquered the world by his clever disguise and magical tricks.

By the use of wigs, painted costumes and settings, the dramatic personae convey the audience from its wonted world to one of aesthetic beauty and art.

"You're taking care of them?"

"But she can't keep them shut up in boxes."

A KISS FOR CINDERELLA

Those who saw Wig and Paint's production of J. M. Barrie's, A Kiss for Cinderella, will not soon forget the whimsical beauty of the play, centered about a waif in London during war time. An unusually difficult piece of dramatic work for high school talent to produce, the director, Miss Christian, however, the cast and the set, were well prepared for the season's production of November 24th and 25th.

Foremost among the delightful interpretations in the Fall Play was Julia Mildred Lake's conception of the title role of Cinderella or Miss Thing. Although she is really one of the most guileless creatures imaginable, poor Cinderella is soon caught in a net of suspicion by the impeccable Mr. Bodie, effectively played by George Cole, who hesitates to question the integrity of the faithful servant that cleans his untidy artist's apartments regularly, and yet cannot resist the stubborn doubts of Reece Stokes as David, the policeman.

The first scene of Act II finds Cinderella busy in her shop in the slums. A Man Without a Coat, Hodge Taylor, wants a coat revamped; Mrs. Maloney Shirley Reed, seeks medical advice for her sick husband; Marion, Clara Beth Huckins, merely desires Cindy's sympathy; while another, David Moses, requests his patched shirt. All these wants Cinderella satisfies for a penny. Her last customer is a heavily bearded man who roughly demands a shave. Cindy tries to cut the beard of the man. The man is the policeman whom she recognizes immediately. At her scream four children's heads pop out of the boxes—the mystery is solved. Cindy confesses that she takes care of the orphans, three Allies and one German.

The enactment of Cinderella's idea of a ball is an unusual scene. A newly purchased scrim drop helped to produce the effect of unreality. Those who take part are: Florence Roper, Ross Lyman, Thomas Coultas, Edna Pratt, George LaCharite, Alberta Dillman, David Moses, Margery Bassett, Albert Mulliken, Allan Porter, Hodge Taylor, Ove Knudsen, Melba Cox, Janet Beth Bailey, Shirley Reed, Violet Bennett, Genevieve Lewis, Clara Beth Huckins, Beverly Mortensen, Dorothy Caldwell, Barbara Howell, Mary Solon, Harold Busch and Wilma Eddington.

"What does Mr. Bodie see in her? ... she's a thief."

"I'm afraid she hasn't long to live, Dick."

Music for this scene is furnished by Karl Wascher, George Troutt, Delbert Compton, Richard Hill, Kenneth Mays, and Alvin Emerson under the direction of Mr. McKinney.

Act III brings one again to stark reality. Cinderella is under the medical care of the sister of Mr. Bodie, Dr. Bodie, skillfully interpreted by Evelyn May Gooding. Here in the home of Dr. Bodie two new characters are introduced, Danny, portrayed by Bill Hamlin, and the Probationer, Katherine Stiegemeier. Visiting the patient is Mr. Bodie, who is shocked to find that the chances for the recovery of Cinderella are slim. Violet Bennett, as the maid, serves tea to Cindy, Nurse, and Danny. When David comes, however, the party breaks up to give the anxious David a chance to talk to Cindy. After teasing her policeman for a time Cinderella accepts both David and the glass slippers he has brought as a substitute for an engagement ring.

A great deal of credit for the success of the 1931 Fall Play goes to the "cast behind the cast," which made and handled four sets of complicated scenery with skillful precision.

The production staff included: Stage manager, Harold Busch, and crew, Frank Dobbins, Billy Murray, Charles Romine, Gene White, Charles Bradbury, David Moses, and Thomas Coultas; assistant director, Katherine Stiegemeier; assistant director of children, Evelyn Gooding; properties, Beverley Mortensen, Tommy Coultas, Dorothy Caldwell, Genevieve Lewis and George LaCharite; Electrician, Karl Wascher, and assistants, Allen Porter and Bill Nagel; business, Bill Marsteller, assistant, Bob Russell; advertising, Ross Lyman; finance, David Moses; assistant make-up, Violet Bennett; costumes, Peggy O'Neal, assistant, Leo Kagan; house manager, Mae Brubaker.

A Kiss For Cinderella will be listed near the head of a number of successful plays coached by Miss Christiana Hoover during her three years at Champaign High School.

*It attracts you right? Come on back to the hotel and

*"Are you sure you don't care for

THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING

"The Whole Town's Talking," an uproarious three act farce by John Emerson and Anita Loos, which was presented by the Junior Class on March 16 and 18, may now be added to Miss Christianna Hoover's long list of entertaining plays.

The entire action of the play takes place in the home of Henry Simmons, a dapper middle-aged manufacturer who wants to marry his daughter to his junior partner in business, Chester Binney. The leading role of the quiet, timid Chester was excellently carried by Billy Hamlin, while David Moses as the father played his part exceedingly well.

Mr. Binney happens to be the kind of bachelor that no woman would want. As the aristocratic Mrs. Simmons, portrayed by Harriet McLean states, "Chet Binney is such a blank, that every time he comes into a room, it seems that someone has just gone out."

Mr. Simmons, working on a pet theory of his own, that "every woman wants the man every other woman wants," devised a scheme of inventing some passionate love affairs for the serious Chester so that Ethel, his daughter, played by Barbara Howell, will fall in love with Mr. Binney.

Chester chooses three pictures including the Queen of Rumania, the Mona Lisa and Letty Lythe, a movie star, for his past "flames." Letty is chosen as the woman with whom Chester has had a hectic love affair when he was on business in Los Angeles three years before the play opens.

Of course it isn't very long before the whole town is talking and Chester becomes an object of admiration for every girl in town, including the heretofore cold Ethel who transfers her affections from Mr. Roger Shields, an ultra sophisticated young society man played by Allan Brubaker.

"And you never even saw him

"Oh, can that stuff and gimme my bag."

While Mr. Binney revels in his newly found popularity, the exotic star, Letty Lythe herself, arrives in town on a personal appearance tour. This part was taken by Doris Benham the first night and Eleanor Secker the second night. Accompanying Letty is Donald Swift who is incidentally an ex-pugilist, noted for his jealousy. The part of Swift was played by Albert Mulhken the first night and Robert Russell the second night.

Of course with Letty's arrival, the trouble starts brewing thick and fast, and Chester and Mr. Simmons find themselves in the midst of more difficulties than they are able to handle, but everything finally turns out in their favor with everybody satisfied.

Beverly Mortensen and Dorothy Jane Hanley played the parts of Sally Otis and Lila Wilson, girl friends of Ethel who are infatuated with Chester after they discover he has had an affair with Letty Lythe. Sadie Bloom, a "tough" dancing teacher of Mr. Simmons who causes him no end of trouble with his wife was portrayed by Mildred Croslin. Ann Hyland took the role of Annie, maid of the Simmons, while Kenneth Mayes was a taxi-driver. Roberta Little was one of the girl-admirers of the hero.

The production staff is to be commended for its work. The stage setting was extremely attractive and everything both on stage and off worked with a professional smoothness. Dorothy Caldwell was prompter for the play. Eugene White was stage manager. His crew included Allen Porter, Billy Murray, Kenneth Mayes, and Charles Bradbury. Harold Busch acted as Senior advisor for the crew. The business manager was Mac Brubaker, and Dorothy Lee and Russell Hays were his assistants. Barbara Busch was advertising manager, while her assistant was Beth Fowler. Russell Hays served as house manager. Allen Porter acted in the capacity of electrician with Kenneth Mayes assisting him. Stage props were in the care of Ann Hyland, while Roberta Little and Gilbert Wakeley had charge of the girls and boys props respectively. The Dramatics class under the supervision of Miss Hoover, also aided in production.

*"No, I'm not sorry, Mr. Bence, I'm not a plumber

"I made a big mistake. Duke—I know it, and I'm sorry."

KEMPY

A fast moving comedy of middle class American family life, "Kempy," by J. C. Nugent and Elliot Nugent, was presented by the Senior Class for its annual production late in May. The play was produced under the capable direction of Miss Christianna Hoover.

The living room of the New Jersey home of "Dad" Bence, a well-to-do retired harness manufacturer, is the setting for the entire action of the play.

The plot revolved around the Bence family, including "Dad" Bence, "Ma" Bence, the three Bence girls, Jane, Kate, and Ruth, Duke Merrill, a friend of the family, Ben Wade, Jane's husband, and Kempy James, a plumber who comes to the Bence home.

Kempy, a likable, but quick-tempered young man who is studying architecture, although doing plumbing as a means of income, comes to the Bence home to fix a broken water pipe. While here he meets Kate Bence, the second daughter of the Bence family. She is much spoiled by her enthusiastic family that outdoes itself waiting on her and she loves to imagine herself as being very talented along artistic lines, even writing a book, dabbling with paint and cherishing ambitions for the stage. Because Kempy seems to be the one person on earth who has read and appreciated her book, and because he has vowed to marry the authoress, Kate practically commands the bewildered Kempy to marry her and they elope together about ten minutes after they have met. Courtney Cole played the part of Kempy while Evelyn May Gooding portrayed the role of Kate.

A distinguished and wealthy young man, Duke Merrill, who is incidentally a former suitor of Kate's has an accident in front of the Bence home thereby giving Dad Bence a chance to get him inside the house in order to bring Kate and Duke together again. He and Kate and Duke together had quarreled before over her ambition for an artistic career. Duke was the character played by Russell Hays.

"Gee! She had me worried! I was glad when you brought the dog."

"Make sure there are no veins or arteries cut. Then examine the wound for any foreign substance."

Harold Busch took the part of Dad Bence, the fiery tempered, but kind-hearted father. His efforts to bring about a reconciliation between Duke and Kate and his utter contempt for Kempy furnished a great many humorous situations during the play. "Ma" Bence, his wife, was portrayed by Katherine Stiegemeier. A sweet, trusting little old lady, Ma Bence remains rather ignorant of the ways of the world and her endless threats of fainting are a source of great annoyance to her husband.

Jane Wade, the eldest daughter of the Bence family, was the part played by Virginia Foesterling. Jane is a talkative, narrow-minded woman whose care of her husband Ben Wade, a breezy, slangy, rather boring salesman, is her sole reason for existence. Ben's numerous conventions and "business deals" form a background of humor in the plot. Ross Lyman carried the role of Ben.

Ruth Bence, the sweet, pretty youngest daughter, who cherishes a secret, childlike admiration for Kempy and who possesses a general good will and helpful attitude towards everybody was the character taken by Violet Bennett.

Complications arise when Kempy buys the Bence home and assumes a masterful, domineering attitude in place of his heretofore unpretentious manner. Kate decides at the last minute that it is Duke she loves after all, and when it is discovered that her marriage with Kempy may be annulled because of that young man's extreme youth, it leaves Kempy and Ruth free to marry.

The assistant director of "Kempy" was Julia Mildred Lake. Bill Marsteller was business manager, while Frank Dohyns was stage manager. Leo Kagan served in the capacity of advertising manager and George La Charite was house manager. Fern Bialeschi was costume manager and Nathalene Nemitz, property manager, with Samory Reed, W. Fred Webb and Joe Moll's assistants, Charles Bradbury, Billy Murray, Allen Porter, and Charles Roume composed the stage crew, and Karl Wascher was the electrician.

WIG AND PAINT

Sir James M. Barrie's fantastic play, "A Kiss for Cinderella," which was presented on the evenings of November 24th and 25th, was the most outstanding project of Wig and Paint, senior dramatic club, for the year. A scrim drop, bought especially for this production, was a gift to the school from the club.

Several one-act plays, some of which were coached by student directors and others by Miss Christianna Hoover, sponsor of the club, were given also. Among these were "The Villain Still Pursued Her," which launched the annual Chronicle drive, "A Christmas Chime," given for the Christmas Assembly, and "A Dish of China Tea," presented in honor of the George Washington Bi-Centennial Celebration.

Henry Witte, a well-known Shakespearean reader, was brought to the high school for a Friday afternoon entertainment. Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger" was the movie given by the dramatic club.

Four senior pledges, Ove Knudson, Ross Lyman, Leo Kagan, and Arno Hill were formally initiated into the society in February, while nine Juniors and one Sophomore were initiated in May. They were Reece Stokes, Allan Brubaker, Beverly Mortensen, David Moses, Mac Brubaker, Dorothy Caldwell, Albert Mulliken, Allen Porter, Eugene White, and Janet Bailey.

Because of their fine work in "The Whole Town's Talking," four Juniors, Dorothy Jane Hanley, Harriet McLean, Doris Benham, and Eleanor Secker, were asked to join the club.

The officers of the club were Julia Mildred Lake, president; Evelyn May Gooding, vice-president; Mildred Fisher, secretary; Courtney Cole, treasurer; and Katherine Stiegemeier, point chairman.

FIRST SEMESTER STAGE STORMERS

"The Knave of Hearts," a clever interpretation of the familiar Mother Goose rhyme, was presented for the Champaign High School Parent-Teachers Association, February 10 and for the assembly, February 15, by the first semester Stage Stormers with the help of Miss Christianna Hoover, sponsor of the club. Anita Knapp and Bob Getman were chosen to take the leads. Charles Romine, Stanley Baker, Helen Kuhn, Mary Jane Alexander, Selma Rosen, Mary Cope, Jean Gardner, Hedwig Shroyer, Kathryn Root, Virginia Larson, and Laurabell Schutt were the supporting cast.

Several assembly programs were sponsored by the Stage Stormers. Selma Rosen and Hedwig Shroyer gave a version of a football game. Mary Jayne Alexander, Helen Kuhn, Bob Getman, Anita Knapp, Warren Brubaker, and Wilbur Yocum arranged the pep meeting for the Springfield-Champaign football game, October 23, 1932. Bob Getman was the master of ceremonies. Mary Jane Alexander and Helen Kuhn advertised the Depression Carnival in an assembly.

Original plays and readings were given during the meetings by a committee appointed every week by the program chairman, Helen Kuhn. Miss Hoover often read stories to illustrate how to read aloud correctly and what expression to use in read-

Gales of laughter were brought from the audience when the Stage Stormers presented the "The Fatal Guest." The play was directed by Janet Beth Bailey, and the cast included: Charles King, Geraldine Nickell, Laurabell Schutt, Warren Brubaker, Thomas Flannigan, Florence Poll, Thelma Rose, Ann Norton, and Hedwig Shroyer. Music was furnished by the little German Band.

Janet Beth Bailey was elected president of the Stage Stormers. The office of stage manager was given to Bob Getman. Mary Jayne Alexander took over the duties of secretary and Helen Kuhn, program chairman.

SECOND SEMESTER STAGE STORMERS

The Stage Stormers, freshmen-sophomore dramatic club, claimed 30 members during the second semester. The club met every Tuesday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock in the auditorium with Miss Christianna Hoover, dramatic coach, as faculty advisor.

The first of this semester Wilma Eddington was elected president with Billy McLean to assist her as vice-president. Vontella Garver was chosen to take care of the money and attendance. Richard Clark was stage manager, while Jane Chambers had charge of the programs.

The club worked diligently to raise funds for the MAROON picture. It held three candy sales during the last semester. At both performances of the Junior Class Play candy sales were sponsored by the Stage Stormers, and one was held at the Sadorus-Champaign High School basketball game.

The second semester Stage Stormers existed under quite a unique and different plan. Original plays, written by the members of the club, were acted out and directed by the members themselves. These plays were produced by the committees appointed by the program chairman. This play producing was not only very educational but also enjoyable. Although it was difficult at times to get the stage, the group made the most of their few opportunities and prepared interesting meetings.

One of the best plays given was "Reno and Heaven" written by Richard Clark, who played the part of the lawyer with Delores Strohl as his secretary. His customers wanting a divorce were portrayed by Irma Vance, Billy McLean, Jane Chambers, and Peggy Lyons.

During the semester Miss Hoover entertained the club by reading various one-act plays. She illustrated the fundamentals of acting and the correct way to set the stage. The purpose of the club is to develop acting ability in underclassmen.

In the past three years, the quality of dramatic productions has developed under Christanna Hoover's artistic hand. The playing of a role under her direction has meant more than a mere chance to interpret a character. Not only her skillful coaching but also her inestimable friendship have won our sincere regard.

MUSIC ASSOCIATION

With the understanding that experience in playing before an audience is as important to a musician who wishes to become a public performer as is perfection of instrumental or vocal technique, the members of the Music Association decided to use the club hour as a recital period for soloists and ensembles from the band, orchestra, and glee clubs. Since the club met in the band room every Wednesday during the 10th hour, there was ample time for each of the 42 members of the club to perform before the remainder of the group at least two or three times during the year. Those who had not the musical ability to perform were asked to give biographical sketches.

The members of the club who were not in the week's program always served as a critical audience for the performers, thus learning to criticize and evaluate musical productions intelligently.

The music association elected Billy Nagel to act as its president and Karl Wascher to serve as vice-president. To Florence Roper fell the duty of recording the doings of the club, answering all correspondence and tending to the club's financial matters.

George Troutt, John Morton, Beth Fowler and Byron Hullemier served on the program committee during the first semester. The committee was changed to include Byron Hullemier, Wendell Isley, Beth Fowler, and John Morton for the second semester.

With his wide range of musical experience and knowledge, Mr. Ira A. McKinney was an excellent sponsor for the club.

During the year the association sold piano scores of the school song "Fidelity" to members of the student body in order to raise funds.

BAND

Under the competent direction of Mr. Ira A. McKinney, the band had one of the most productive years of its existence. Scarcely a week passed during the year in which the band did not furnish music for some school or community gathering.

A marching band of sixty pieces selected from the concert band, presented a marching program for each of the night football games. The band also went to Danville football games.

An informal concert in the auditorium, a concert at St. Joe and many other engagements for civic clubs and community affairs were included in the band's activities.

Karl Wascher, Billy Lucka, Xon Alexander, George Troutt, David Moses and Ross Lyman were chosen from the band to play in the all-state orchestra.

In addition to the band, there were four ensembles and eleven soloists to represent the school in the competition at the annual State Band Contest. The soloists were David Moses, Karl Wascher, Alvin Emmons, Eugene Faulkner, George Troutt, Billy Nagel, Billy Lucka, Byron Hillemeier, Roy Williams, Wendell Hays, and Junior James.

A group of soloists from the band also competed in the Big 12 solo contests with success.

Eleven years ago when Mr. McKinney became director for the band, it was composed of 16 saxaphones and occasional instruments. Since that time it has made steady progress and only failed to win the privilege of competing in the State Band Contest once.

BATON CLUB

The Baton Club, the honorary organization of the band, started the school year with only six members left from last year's club. They were Eugene Faulkner, who plays the baritone; George Troutt, clarinet; Karl Wascher, cornet; Byron Hullemier, cornet; Ross Lyman, bass drum; and John Morton, sousaphone.

The club was enlarged in February after an initiation of pledges. During this month, the period of probation for a prospective Baton club member, the actions of the pledges were watched very closely and they were given several tasks to do to prove their worthiness. There were six new members elected, four seniors and two juniors.

The seniors were William Nagel, alto-clarinet; Wendell Isley, cornet; Harold Faulkner, French horn; and Alvin Emmons, trombone. The only juniors to receive the honor were David Moses, sousaphone and Arthur Murfin, clarinet. They will form the nucleus for next year's club.

To be elected to this club a band member must have played for at least two years in the band and received an "A" or "B" in the course, played in four band contests, have a satisfactory scholastic standing in the school, and be a leader in the band, both in playing his instrument and setting examples for the other band members.

Since the Baton Club is an honor organization it did not hold regular meetings but met at the call of Mr. Ira A. McKinney, the sponsor of the club. During the taking picture of the opera "Pagliacci," which ran at the Rialto theatre, Baton Club members served as ushers.

The emblem of the Baton Club, which is the "C" and "L.B.C." is presented to members after their initiation and worn on certain days set by the club.

HENNY PENNY

Running from one person to another with the latest news or gossip was the main occupation of Henny Penny. Her friends had to rely on her for all the news.

The Chronicle gives to all high school students the latest news, while the MAROON, as a yearbook, records the activities of the year.

Staff of the Champaign Chronicle. Russell Miller, Z. Smith.

CHRONICLE

To furnish the student body of the high school with all of the school news the Champaign Chronicle published eight issues during the first semester. With the beginning of the second semester it found itself unable to continue publication because its funds were tied up in a closed bank. Through the courtesy of the Champaign News-Gazette the staff was able to publish a department of school news in the local paper every Sunday. The staff found this new venture fascinating because they were writing for a larger audience, not only students and faculty but fathers, mothers, and friends.

In the publication of the paper the staff was assisted by the members of the beginning and advance news-writing classes. There was a larger enrollment in these classes than in previous years, and they showed much interest in writing news stories and helping the editors. During the second semester the two classes took turns in preparing the stories for the Chronicle page.

The Chronicle during the year received scoops on such big stories as the Christmas tree contests, the senior play, the fall play and the new members of Quill and Scroll.

In November at the General Convention of the Illinois High School Press Association at the University of Illinois the school paper was given a distinguished rating among other high school papers. This rating is given to all papers which are considered 85 per cent good in accordance with their opportunities.

Evening May Gooding and Frank Dobyns were in charge of the subscription drive which was held early in the fall. The drive was opened in assembly by a farcical play presented by Wig and Paint.

A prize of $2.50 for selling the most subscriptions was given to Bernita Kurzweg. Beth Fowler, Zelma Taborn, Helen Kuhn, Ruth Salladay, and Anita Knapp, who each sold ten or more subscriptions, received free down payments as the reward for their work.

IN APPRECIATION

We have always been aware that we owe much to our faculty, administration, student body, and our business men for their consistent support.

This year, especially, the faculty by its encouragement has given invaluable aid to the year book. The Publications Board is representative of the willingness of our instructors to help. Miss Chaffee, Miss Kaden, Miss Scott, and Mr. Stewart spent much valuable time in suggesting and planning for the 1932 MAROON.

When we were in doubt, Mr. Allison and Miss Chaffee were always there, ready to give their constructive aid. To tell us definitely how to proceed—this is the service our administration has repeatedly rendered us.

For the confidence they have shown in us, we will not forget our business men, who have done all in their power to make the 1932 MAROON an achievement. Our advertisers and our printer, engraver and photographers have alike demonstrated a personal interest in our welfare as a successful publication.

Perhaps never before have the Chronicle and MAROON staffs united so completely as during this year. The Editors of the Chronicle found time to boost the MAROON drive in every possible way. We know that the backing of the Chronicle staff has made our path less difficult all along.

In a list of those of our friends to whom we owe a great deal, we cannot forget our solicitors and subscribers. Our salesmen were particularly zealous and our student body equally ready to subscribe.

To our business men, to our faculty, our administration, our student body, and our allied publication, we would like to say "Thank you."

Three seniors and one junior were elected to National Thespians this year. They are Violet Bennett, Shirley Reed, and Karl Wascher, and Bill Hamlin. The initiation was held in assembly Monday, April 11, where the ritual was read by Julia Mildred Lake. Miss Christianna Hoover told the history of the society and the origin of the name Thespian from a Greek actor, Thespis.

In order to be admitted to National Thespians a student must be regularly enrolled at the high school, or academy, of satisfactory scholarship, must have played with merit in a major role of one long play, or two one-act plays, staged by the institution, and must have done work of such quality as to be approved by the director. COMMERCIAL TEAMS

Keen competition in trying out for the 1932 commercial teams was a result of enthusiasm and skill on the part of the students of typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping. Any commercial student who aspired to "making a team" was allowed to try out during a long intensive period of drill work.

At two local meets, both held at Champaign, the Champaign commercial department placed first. On March 12, St. Joe, Bement, Fisher, and University high again competed.

On April 22 Champaign was again the host of the district contest. It was no small job for Miss Jones, chairman of the meet, to make preliminary arrangements with the many schools which entered commercial teams. Among the district high-school competitors were Heyworth, University High, Fisher, Downs, Longview, Villa Grove, Mansfield, Mahomet, and Urbana.

Members of the 90 and 100 word shorthand teams were Lucille Dahl, Phyllis Lovingfoss, Katherine Donley, with Mildred Fisher acting as alternate, while on the 70 word team were Muriel Tolliver, Mary Hulse, Lola Schroeder and alternate, Chrystal Jackson.

In bookkeeping Francis Leach, Elsa Singbusch, Jack O'Byrne, and Bruce Whiteside as alternate formed the team.

Martha Graves, Eloise Ford, Mildred Fisher, and Louise Westerbeek, alternate, contested as members of the amateur or advanced typing team. A novice team was composed of the best beginning typists; Mary Plummer, Ferd Besore, Lola Schroeder, and Maurice Marshall, alternate.

The skillful coaching of Miss Mamie Jones, shorthand instructor, Mr. Lloyd E. Greiner, bookkeeping teacher, and Mr. Howard Stewart, typing instructor, is largely responsible for the consistent fine showing of C. H. S. commercial teams.

In the 1931 State Finals, Champaign received second place, losing first place by 2 points.

TYPING CLUB

This year marked the first year of the organization of a typing club in Champaign High School. The club was made up of fifteen members all of whom had had at least one year of typing or were taking their second year of that course.

It was decided that the club would meet the tenth hour each Wednesday and spend the time in typing. The members took fifteen minute speed tests to enable themselves to type more swiftly. Accuracy tests were also given to perfect their work. In these the typist would type the copy as given and when finished would check his paper, counting the number of mistakes made, and thus average his grade.

A contest was held in the club in order to estimate the skill of the typists. The club was divided into five groups, each containing three members. An equal number of advanced typists were in each group. The members in one group were Lucille Dahl, Norma Graves, and Eva Taylor. In another group were Margaret Anderson, Helen Moon, and Eloise Ford, while the third group was made up of Beulah Dillman, Phyllis Lovingfoss, and Martha Graves. The other two groups were made up of Louise Westerbeck, Eva Ostema, and Madine Conley, Delia La Vernway, Alice Gannaway, and Geneva Taylor. The members were grouped so that they averaged the same.

Secretarial work was discussed later in the year.

In the fall the club had a winter roast east of Urbana. A Christmas party was held at the home of Delia La Vernway.

The following officers were chosen: Martha Graves, president; Phyllis Lovingfoss, vice-president. These officers were appointed to serve for both semesters, and various committees were appointed by the president during the course of the year.

Mr. Howard Stewart, instructor in typing, was the club sponsor.

BOOSTER CLUB

Carrying on the Second Annual Homecoming was the prominent plan of the Booster Club this year.

As a forerunner of the homecoming game a hobo parade was held. Anthony Jones, who was dressed as a colored mammy, was declared winner of the first prize awarded for the best original costume in the lengthy parade. The receivers of the second prize were John Johnson and Kenneth Peterson, who gave an excellent representation of a horse. For the portrayal of a washwoman with a typical washing hanging on a line, Morris Bender was awarded third prize. The prizes consisting of a silver loving cup, sweaters, and a corduroy coat were presented to the winning contestants during the half of the Champaign-Springfield game.

A rousing pep-meeting, which was attended by 600 students, parents, and friends, was held on homecoming eve. A big program of speakers included: "Wennie" Wilson, Eddie Jacquin, Coach Lester R. Moyer, Superintendent V. L. Nickell, Stanley Kaufman, Al Hall, Bill Hagerman, Anthony Jones, and Seeley Johnson. After the meeting a torch light parade through the town was led by the band.

The club sponsored another pep-meeting which took place before the annual Champaign-Urbana tilt. Sam Vriner, Marvin Hout, Principal C. W. Allison, George Stafford, Vern Carson, John Lierman, and Coach Lester R. Moyer gave short speeches.

Bill Marsteller was president and Anthony Jones served as the official mascot. Monty Bradley was in charge of the organization.

PARLIAMENTARY DRILL CLUB

Obtaining the floor, and the preventing, stating and putting of a motion formed the basic principal for the valuable study of parliamentary law in the Parliamentary Drill Club this past year.

Members of the club elected officers each semester. The first semester Marjorie Lovell took charge of directing the club, with Mary O'Conner filling the position as her assistant. Herbert Stevenson had the position of Secretary and Treasurer, taking care of the minutes and the treasury.

The second semester, the president's office was capably filled by Mary O'Conner, who was well assisted in her duties by Vice-president, Eleanor Sweney. Elizabeth Hogan took over the position of Secretary and Treasurer. This club consisted of ten members. Among the group were Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors.

The members studied the organization of a club from a temporary group to a permanent society. They further learned the order of business and how to keep minutes. They studied main and subsidiary motions, the purpose, the order of precedence, the debatable and the undebatable motions, those motions requiring a majority, and those requiring a two-thirds vote such as incidental, privileged, and miscellaneous were also studied.

MARJORIE LOVELL

During the year the club has quite successfully represented several prominent organizations in order to bring up appropriate motions and business. Some organizations represented were the Student Council, Faculty, Board of Education, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Athletic Council, United States Senate, Committee on Landscape Gardening and Building, and the National Republican Convention. Much valuable information to be used in later life has been gained through the hard and consistent work of the members and through the capable supervision of the sponsor, Miss Ida B. Davis.

NATURAL SCIENCE CLUB

The members of the Natural Science Club and of the Botany Club held joint meetings throughout the past year. The clubs alternated each week in taking charge of the meetings and in preparing the programs.

Among the programs sponsored by the Natural Science Club were several instructive speeches and illustrated lectures by members of the club. Some of the interesting topics discussed were: "Are Things What They Seem?", "Beneficial Insects," "Harmful Insects," "Conservation of Wild Life," "Famous Naturalists of the World," "Animal Products of Industry," and "Health Heroes of the World."

On Wednesday, April 20, Robert Grubb presented to the Department of the Conservation of Wild Life at Michigan a moving picture film. This film has rated the wild life in the forest of Northern Michigan.

Trips were taken to the University on Wednesday, November 11, and Wednesday, February 24, when the Crysanthemum Show, the University greenhouse, and the Natural History Museum were visited.

The club has, in its second year of existence, continued its membership in the Illinois State Junior Academy of Science, which it entered the last semester of last year. Several members of this club have contributed articles to their "News Letters," a magazine written by many High Schools of the State.

The first semester the members of the club elected as their officers: Jack Baum, president; Neal Kelsey, vice-president; Mildred Fletcher, secretary; and Robert Grubb, treasurer.

These offices were filled during the second semester by Robert Grubb, president; Marvin Upton, vice president; and Clarence Bacon, secretary and treasurer. This club was sponsored by Mrs. Grace Cook.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

Richard Hall, president of the Chemistry Club, guided his fellow-members through a successful year because of the various experiments and speeches which added to their general knowledge of Chemistry. Evelyn Gooding acted as vice-president, while the position of secretary-treasurer was filled by James Stein. This club is under the supervision of Mr. Charles Gooding.

Throughout the year Marjorie Bassett was chairman of the program committee. Her assistants were appointed at each individual meeting. Among the many programs planned were several trips to different plants of the Twin Cities where points of chemical interest were explained. Some of these places were Smith's Ice Plant, White Line Laundry, Quality Bakery, and the Champaign Ice Cream Company. A trip was also made to one of the engineering buildings of the University of Illinois where the members saw cast iron being poured.

The club held a Christmas party, at which refreshments were served and each student drew the name of one of his fellow-members to whom he gave a little gift.

Mr. Gooding, at several of the meetings, gave "illustrated" lectures; that is, lectures accompanied by the performing of experiments.

During National Fire Prevention Week the club presented an assembly at which Richard Hall presided. After the causes of burning had been explained, the operation of the different types of fire extinguishers was shown. Assistant Fire Chief, Roy Alsip, gave a short address as a concluding feature of the assembly.

GIRL SCOUTS

The First Aid Contest, which was held on April 2 at the Champaign High School gymnasium, was the big event for the Girl Scouts this year. The Champaign High School Troop 10 took third place in this. The members of the First Aid team were, Laura Summers, Clara McGinty, Betty Woller, Ann Sherritt, and Frances Grant. They demonstrated what to do in case of accidents. Dr. C. F. Newcomb and the local director, Mrs. R. W. Swindell had charge.

A bazaar was held in the Morehead building just before Christmas, the general chairman being Clara McGinty. Barbara Bush was in charge of the publicity and handicraft committee; Virginia Thompson, the bakery booth; Beth Fowler, the book booth; Laura Summers, the tea room; and Norma Jean Gillingham, the candy booth. Practically everything sold was made by the girls.

At the first of the year Beth Fowler, Laura Summers, Norma Jean Gillingham, and Clara McGinty were chosen to be patrol leaders. These girls had for their assistants as corporals Eleanor Sweney, Frances Grant, Ann Sherritt and Virginia Thompson. Betty Woller, was elected treasurer and Barbara Bush was chosen scribe. Beverly Mortenson, Virginia Campbell, and Frances Grant were chosen as color guards.

Through out the year, the girls have been working on map making, first aid, signalling, and earning various badges.

On April 12, the troop visited the observatory at the University of Illinois and listened to a short talk about the constellations given by Professor Merrill. Afterwards they viewed Venus and the Moon through a telescope.

The grand finale of the year was the Court of Awards. Many of the Girls received badges and awards.

BOTANY CLUB

Under the supervision of Miss Alvena Bamberger, the Botany Club passed another prosperous year. The Botany Club met weekly with the Natural Science Club. Each club, however, had its own officers. In accordance with their constitution the members of the club elected officers each semester. Those elected by the Botany Club, for the first semester were: Billy Lucka, president; John Slater, vice-president; and Zudora Miller, secretary and treasurer.

The offices were just as successfully filled during the second semester by: Roberta Little as president; Robert Busch; vice-president; and Zelma Holl filling the two positions, secretary and treasurer.

The first semester program committee, consisting of Billy Lucka, John Slater, Zudora Miller, Robert Busch, and Zelma Holl, prepared many interesting and instructive programs. Among them were: "Planting," "Edibles of Deciduous Forest Trees," "Cellulose," "Rubber Products," "Poisonous Plants," and "Sugars."

Although there was no program committee, several interesting programs were prepared by the president and the secretary-treasurer, during the second semester. The topics, "Famous Naturalists and Their Work," "Tropical Fruits," "The Conservation of Plants," "Our National Parks," "Spices of the World," and "What Botany has to do with our Breakfast Foods and Beverages," were included in the list.

On Wednesday, October 21, a novel idea was used in calling roll, which proved very successful. As the name of each member was called, he would respond by the name of his favorite tree. In some instances this afforded quite a lot of amusement.

On Wednesday, December 23, because the Natural Science Club had charge of the program, the Botany Club furnished refreshments and made the club hour into a party.

There was another social hour held on Wednesday, December 16. During this hour the topic of "Sugars" was discussed. Candy was passed. This seemed an important use of sugar and was quite appropriate to the meeting.

HANDICRAFT CLUB

Under the efficient sponsorship of Mr. Earnest Simon, wood shop instructor, the Handicraft club spent a very beneficial and productive year.

During the regular Wednesday club period the members fashioned objects in wood and metal. Eight members of the club, realizing what working in small objects means to the furthering of an artistic career, decided to take as their club project of the year miniature cedar chests.

One member furnished a hexagonal table, while another did the working of a Roman Galley. A pair of candle sticks was also made. The leading project furnished was a turned lamp. After all the small pieces of different types of woods, oak, walnut, cedar, maple and pine had been turned this lamp was put together with glue. A Queen Anne lamp was made, too.

Metal objects of small size were produced after all the members had finished their work in woods. The various objects were exhibited at the annual open house held at the annex.

The club early in the first semester, elected to the position of president, John Johnson, who presided at all meetings and guided the social as well as the business activities of the club. Earl Day took over the post as president in the absence of the executive. Warren Schaffer handled the financial matters while Kenneth Peterson recorded the absentees and the minutes of the meetings.

Realizing that a social activities are of importance, the club took several hikes to near-by places of interest. Smith's woods was the goal for one hike.

The club spent an enjoyable week-end at Decatur Lake as the guests of Clarence Inskip.

GARDEN CLUB

With representatives of advisory groups gathered in a semi-circle around a small but growing elm tree on the front parking, Dr. R. E. Hieronymus, the Community Advisor of the Department of Agricultural Extension, University of Illinois, dedicated the tree on the afternoon of February 22 for the Garden Club. The club had planted the tree which was their George Washington Bi-Centennial tree, in December.

Before the dedication of the tree, Dr. Hieronymus talked on "The Rural Life of Washington" in the assembly sponsored by the club. In this talk he touched upon the high points of the life of Washington, both when he was a boy and when he became a man.

In their club meetings, the members studied and discussed various plants and shrubs. In the fall, they planted tulips, crocuses, and grape and wood hyacinths. During club roll call the members would answer by giving the name of a flower and then by describing it. In this manner they hoped to learn the characteristics of the many flowers.

Later in the year, the members visited the Art Floral Shop and Barsch's Flower Shop, both local flower stores. There they learned the proper way to care for house plants, when to plant certain bulbs, garden seeds, the proper care for hot-house plants, and the various types of lawn seeds.

As a field trip, they visited the University green house. Then they went to the Floriculture Building. While they were there, they saw some of the plants and flowers that grew in Illinois. There they observed the flowers of the southern states, and finally those flowers and plants of the tropical countries.

This Garden Club was sponsored by Miss Vera Bassett. The members chose the following officers for the first semester: Mary Amy, president; Francis Leuth, vice president; Cleo Siegmund, secretary; and Helen Kingston, treasurer. Those who were chosen for the second semester were: Renard Koehnemann, president; Helen Kingston, vice-president; Cleo Siegmund, secretary; and George Smith, treasurer.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

"Service to Others" was the motto of the Home Economics club this year, so it devoted a greater part of the first semester to Christmas Charity work. The club which is composed of students in the Foods and Clothing classes was divided into five groups. Each chose a family to aid. The members made over old clothes and bought material for new ones with money obtained from candy sales. Baskets of foods were prepared for the families by the Foods department.

Preceding the Christmas season, two weeks were spent in the making of personal Christmas gifts. The remaining six weeks were spent in making miscellaneous gifts for charity.

Instructive reports were given by various club members on the following topics: "Development of Social Life," "Opportunities through Home Economics," "Other Home Economics Clubs and Their Activities," "Home Economics in Other Countries," "Family Relationship," and "Economics." Miss Ruth Hibbs, art instructor, talked on "Block Prints for Fabrics," "Cookie Baking" and "Fancy Cake Frosting" were demonstrated before the club.

A four-act play, "The Betti-Attitudes" was given for the club. The play showed the change in fashions. The first act took place in 1882, the second in 1890, the third in 1900, and the fourth act in 1924. The play was directed by Miss Catherine Dennis, a practice teacher in clothing.

This was the third year of the Home Economics Club's affiliation with the American and Illinois Home Economics Association. The officers were: Ruby Burgess, president; Mary Hulse, vice-president, and Hilah Hinds, secretary-treasurer. Miss Lucille Stansell and Mrs. Helen Stark were sponsors of the club.

GIRL RESERVES

"I will try to face life squarely; to find and give the best." With this as their aim the Girl Reserves of Champaign High create an environment of friendship and service in the school and community in which they live. The organization is a member of the National Girl Reserves which is sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. It strives to develop the spiritual, mental, and physical capacities of each girl.

Late in the fall a recognition service, as the initiation into the Girl Reserves is called, was held at the McKinley Foundation.

The triangle circumscribed in a circle, is the emblem worn by the girls which symbolizes their steadily growing personality.

The annual Good-will Girl Reserves and Hi-Y banquet held in March at the First Methodist Church of Champaign was one of the most important social events of the year which members of these organizations from Urbana, University, and Champaign High Schools attended.

With a helping hand always ready, the Girl Reserves prepared baskets for the needy on Thanksgiving and Christmas. In the spring, a collection of clothes was gathered to send to the miners in Kentucky.

In order to get out-of-doors, treasure hunts, picnics, and hikes were taken.

The officers were Lucille Dahl, president; Emily Belshaw, vice-president; Geneva Bruns, secretary; Dorothy Rogers, treasurer. Mrs. Elizabeth Sawdey Furry was the director.

As an end to the year's activities, the annual Farewell Senior banquet was held at which the new officers for the coming year were installed.

COLORESQUE

Producing the play "The Fate of Ki-Yuan"—a Chinese play which had been written by Glenadine Jackson, a student in the art classes—was one of the ways in which the members of the Coloresque Club developed their artistic talents.

Those art students who took a part in the play were: Joe Fogerty, artist; Clara Dayton, Mandarin's daughter; Margaret Connors, Mander; Lillian Rogers, statue; Roberta Wiley, death dancer; Jean Jenkins, incense carrier; Rubavent Utley, executioner; Lorraine Wise, Virginia Larson, Charles McTaggart, gods; Delia LaVernway, Frances Barrett, Monks; Later, Virginia Shonkwiler, and Eleanor Swency, torch bearers; Winifred Wiley, Margie Lee, Vera Carlton, Barbara Busch, Janet Quinlin, Ruth Denny, Hattie Thompson, monks; Helen Shoemaker, Doris Connet, Pauline Hatchee, and Audrey Stillman, girl friends of the mandarin's daughter; Anna Dady, maid; and Ruth Roberts, cook.

During many club meetings, the members did manual work. Silhouette pictures of famous characters, plaster plaques, and pounded metal articles were made. At other times, some of the girls made scarfs of silk or cotton. These scarfs were waxed, painted and then the colors were ironed into them. The boys made rings of pounded silver and ash trays of pounded copper and silver. Some of the others made metal pins which were carved with some intricate design.

At another time, they studied the colors—primary, secondary, and intermediate. They learned how the mixture of the colors would blend and make new colors.

The Coloresque Club was sponsored by Miss Ruth Hibbs, art instructor, and the officers, who were chosen for the entire year were: Opal Coventry, president; George Sandwell, vice-president; Eloise Isley, secretary; and Billy Hall, treasurer.

STATIC CLUB

"Why Teachers Get Grey," a play written, directed, and acted by members of the Tuesday Physics Club, "The Static Club," was given for the assembly on April 7. Experiments were used to make the play educational and action to make it amusing.

The aim of the club, to provide pleasant diversion as well as to accomplish some achievements, was made successful by a varied program of social functions, lectures, movies, and field trips. In the way of mixing fun and learning, the club sponsored a skating party. The members first examined the mechanism of the rink and then skated to test its reliability. A picnic was held at the country home of Melrose Park on October 6 and a Christmas party was held at the meeting just before vacation. Field trips were taken to the Smith Ice Plant, the Illinois Water Company, the Illinois Power and Light Plant, the University of Illinois Weather Bureau, the University of Illinois Creamery, and the Champaign Ice Cream Company. The club sponsored a trip to the University of Illinois Observatory on April 11, inviting the Wednesday club to accompany them.

The construction and uses of the telephone were illustrated in a movie given by the Bell Telephone Company. At one meeting the members were given tests to see if they could become good airplane pilots; at another, lectures on the diving bell and Edison were given by members of the club. Also some of the students gave talks on "The Life of Watts," forms of steam engines, turbines, and automobile.

The first semester officers were: Ross Lyman, president; David Moses, vice-president; Kenneth Mayes, secretary; John Morton, treasurer; and Karl Wascher, program chairman. The officers for the second semester were: John Reeves, president; Karl Wascher, vice-president; Billy Nagel, secretary; and Wendell Isley, program chairman.

THE CREATIVE WRITING CLUB

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Amy Turrell, the Creative Writing Club, which met every Tuesday afternoon during the regular club hour, attracted to its membership twelve students.

To have a background for future writing the club members spent much time and energy in studying the principles of writing short stories. Essays and poems were also studied. These principles were later set forth in original productions written by the club members. The best compositions were typed and placed in a scrap book.

A different policy was carried out this year concerning the program. After the committee had planned the program for the entire year, Barbara Busch designed program covers, while Doris Benham and Wanda Smith typed the pages for the programs. Every fourth club meeting was devoted to social functions in order that the neophyte authors might know how to mix with people.

The club had a bridge party at one meeting and a few weeks later each member was required to give a stunt. Roll call was answered at every meeting by original jingles, which proved to be quite clever and amusing.

Among the authors chosen as representatives of modern literature were Dorothy Canfield Fisher, an American author who wrote the "Bent Twig," Edna Ferber, who is noted for her books portraying both sides of life and also as author of "Show Boat," and John Erskine, an author of humor and realities. John Galsworthy was the only representative of English literature.

The club elected as its officers: Genevieve Lewis, president; Mary Katherine Wise, vice-president; and Wanda Smith, secretary-treasurer.

The program committee consisted of Dorothy Jane Hanley, chairman; Doris Benham; and Mildred Lee. The social committee was: Mary Katherine Wise, chairman; Wanda Barbee, Mildred Lee, and Hazel Hunsicker. The constitutional committee was: Barbara Busch, chairman, Catherine Boyer, Genevieve Lewis, and Mrs. Turrell.

FRENCH CLUB

Aiding the French classes in presenting a play entitled, "French Without a Master," before an assembly, was one of the services rendered by the French club this year.

The play was given by the French classes of Miss Beryl L. Schroeder, the French instructor. The cast included: Charles Romine, who played the part of the interpreter of a small hotel; John Morton, who was Seraphine's father, a Frenchman of high rank; Eugene White, a young Englishman; Robert Grubb, the police officer; Thomas Flannigan, the hotel porter; Evelyn May Gooding, Seraphine Chanoine-Malherbe, a French girl, the daughter, and Bernita Kurzweg, the cashier in the hotel where the scene took place.

At each club meeting individual members presented various topics as: biographical sketches of Jeanne D'Arc, the French lass who fought for her country; Victor Hugo, a French poet and novelist; La Fontaine, the fabulist and poet; George Sand, another novelist; Louis Pasteur, the scientist and chemist; and Voltaire, the philosopher and satirist.

At another time the members made vocabulary notebooks of French-English word forms. They also made a newspaper of the French people and learned songs in both French and English.

Miss Alma Trevett spoke to the club on "My Trip Around the World." In this address, she told of the various French colonial possessions and then of the importance of the modern land of the Bourbon Lillies.

The members also made a study of the French life and customs of the present time, and they dramatized little plays that represented French life.

This French Club was sponsored by Miss Schroeder and the officers, who were chosen for the entire year, were Virginia Ehler, president; Wallace Ehler, vice-president; and Harold Ong, secretary-treasurer.

THE GERMAN CLUB MEMBERS

GERMAN CLUB

Working for the final production which took place at open house the German club spent a large amount of time in producing two puppet shows, Miss Amy Beach acting as sponsor for the club.

The club program conducted for the main part by members consisted of talks supplemented by pictures. During the year, the program committee consisting of Russell Nesbitt, chairman; Richard Franklin, Deborah Baker, Juanita Kobel, and Albert Konradt secured to speak before the club on German affairs, two German exchange students of the University of Illinois. At the Christmas meeting Herr Herman Glawatz spoke on "Christmas in Germany." Later in the year Herr Rudolf von Wistinghausen, who is a student of German political life, took as his chief topic to present to the club, "Germany and German affairs." Other University speakers secured were: Miss Jehle who gave a talk on Germany and also showed a few pictures, Mr. William Schreiber who read some German articles, and Miss Blumenkamp, a practice teacher in German, who supervised a puppet show which was given at a weekly Wednesday meeting.

Early in September the club, organized for the express purpose of studying German life, customs and culture, started their intensive yearly program by electing the leaders of their society to offices, which were held throughout the two semesters. Bernita Kurzweg presided at all meetings, while Albert Konradt served as the president's right hand man; Howard Messman kept account of the absentees and recorded the works of the various committees, while Iola Cam took charge of the club's financial matters.

At stated meetings, German games were played. These programs were taken care of by the game committee composed of Anita Milleville, Howard Messman, Iola Cam, Helen Curzon, Herman Bud, and Bernice Moore.

A social committee was composed of Reba Kurzweg, Juanita Horn, Alta Glandt, Robert Mueller and Lawrence Sieber.

THE FROST KING

The Frost King, obdurate in his determination to freeze out the warmth and beauty of the world, thwarted the desire of the gentle fairy, Star, who asked that flowers be allowed to bloom again. Fired by enthusiasm, the entire Fairy Kingdom enlisted the aid of the Jolly Sun, and together they vigorously melted the depressing ice.

Even so discouraging as the ice to the fairies is the atmosphere of strange people and surroundings to a new student. But the sympathy of the faculty and the congeniality of the student body soon absorb the new comer in the friendly warmth of high school life.

THE MYSTERY OF THE SATIN SLIPPERS

Long ago, there lived a King, Jewett Cole and his fair Queen, Winifred Barker. They had twelve daughters, Princesses Violet Bennett, Shirley Reed, Dorothy Roberts, Juanita Young, Opal Coventry, Florence Roper, Mary Ellen Arseneau, Melba Cox, Edna Baldwin, Margaret Casper, and Jane Rose.

Each night a new pair of slippers was given each princess, by their ladies-in-waiting, Marie Behens, Wilma Berbaum, Ruth Calimese, Marjorie Cekander, Hazel Dillon, Wilma Farris, Martha Graves, Gertrude Hemm, Velma Herrington, Hilah Hinds, Rosina Homann, Crystal Jackson, and Genevieve Johnson to wear to the evening banquet. When the banquet was over the King had the Ladies, Vera Kelley, Bernita Kurzweg, and Laura Summers at the banquet room door to inspect the Princesses' slippers. Each night they reported the slippers in perfect condition when the little ladies left the banquet room and, each morning all twelve pairs were completely worn out. It had been a mystery to the King and Queen how their daughters could wear out so many slippers.

The King called his Herald, Leo Kagan, and told him to have a call sounded, throughout the land, offering the hand of his youngest daughter, for the solution of this mystery. Noblemen came from many lands to try their luck. King Byron Sanders tried and failed. Knight Harry Connor came with his helpers, Chris Brady, Paul Schaede, Ove Knudson, George LaCharite, and William Lierman, and after a fortnight of fruitless effort, returned to their homes. Elba Bales came and brought with him, Xon Alexander, Harrison Larry, his Queen mother, Lucille McTaggart, and his sisters, Mae Gardner, Jane Frison, and Billie Hall. He failed also and returned to his home.

PRINCE OTTO COMES

The King has almost given up hope of ever solving this mystery, when a handsome prince from the land of Clancy, named after that much loved hero, Margaret Clancy, came adventuring into the country. Prince Otto Zimmerman had with him four of the most prized young men of the land, Wendell Isley and Harold Busch, recently knighted by King Joseph O'Neal and Queen Margaret O'Neal, and Robert Busch and Frank Dobyns.

The King called the Prince to him and explained in the presence of his counselors, Ralph Smalley, Bruce Whiteside, Albern Watts, Lauren Turner and Earnest Green, about the dangers to be encountered. Prince Otto was full of daring and besides had fallen in love with Jane, so he accepted the Kings' challenge with only two days in which to become acquainted with the castle.

THE BANQUET

As Prince Otto walks through the garden two fairies appear, Mary Jordan and Rosamund St. Clair. After they warn him about drinking the wine which the Princess will give him, they present him with a coat, which will make him invisible.

The time having elapsed, Prince Otto prepares himself for his watch. He takes his coat and goes to the banquet. There he announces his readiness to start solving the mystery. When the Princess is about to fill his cup he refuses saying, "I am sorry Princess, but wine is not good for one's health."

After the banquet, he lies down on his couch, which has been placed outside the Princesses' door. Shortly after midnight he hears a noise within the room and so opens the door just in time to see the youngest Princess disappear through a secret passage.

Electricity for the Home

Electricity is a universal commodity. No home is complete without this convenience. Today there is more dollar value in a unit of electric energy than ever before. It is the cheapest part of the household budget, considering the service that it performs. Only a few cents a day pays—for electric current to operate appliances that would require hours of hard labor to perform. Electricity not only lights your home but does your washing, ironing, toasts your bread, makes your coffee, operates your electric refrigerator, your clock and dozens of other useful things. These facts merit the thought of every consumer, shareholder, and citizen.

THE SECRET PASSAGE

The room is deserted so, Prince Otto concludes, the Princesses have gone before. He enters, hastily slips on his invisible coat and follows. They go down a long passage and on the way pass a beautiful silver tree from which Otto plucks a branch as proof of his story. As he does this, the youngest Princess, starts and looks back but sees no one. A little farther, they come upon a tree of solid gold. He also takes a branch of this tree, for future use. The princess is again frightened by the tapping of the twigs behind her back but is reassured by the other princesses. They proceed through the forest and they come upon a beautiful lake. There they find twelve boats and as many princes awaiting them.

THE LAKE TRIP

The Princes, Arnold Cagann, Courtney Cole, Robert Doty, Donald Dunham, Wallace Foote, Marvin Hont, Kenneth Chase, Benjamin Pfeifer, Edwin Reid, George Sandwell, and Charles Seoggin claim the eleven oldest. When Burt Shauger comes to claim the youngest, Prince Otto is seized with a mighty fit of jealousy and would have stabbed him had there not been a sudden weight upon his hand. Instead he hides himself in their boat and spies upon them. Each rowboat is manned by two elves. Included in this company are: Jack Green, Herman Marlow, Walter K. Johnson, Harold Faulkner, Joe Moll, William Spence, Edward Tabaka, George Stephens, John Schuler, Clark Overton, Kenneth Peterson, and Albert Kink. Leon Matten, Robert Bauman, Harold Langholl, Harris Ehler, Mathews Porter, Bruce Whiteside, Thomas Bradley, Louis Irle, Laurence Lindsay, Phillip Riechman, Arno Hill, and Charles Taylor.

THE ARRIVAL OF THE PARTY

They reach the further shore and are driven up to the castle in golden coaches where they find twelve fairies awaiting to take their wraps. Anna Mae Bacon, Iola Cain, Delia L. Vernway, Zudora Miller, Jane Phillips, Wanda Wilcox, Blanche Owens, Wilma Price, Marion Bates, Margaret Charnes, Lucille Dahl and Beth Filson. They find many fairies flitting here and there trying to be of some help. Among them are Muriel Tolliver, Eva Taylor, Dorothy Spry, Geneva Taylor, Bernice Smith, and Verna Mauck. Entering the ball room they find much gaiety. Soon the princesses and their escorts part the crowd while Otto conceals himself in the folds of the curtains on a balcony to watch the scene. He notices several people that he recognizes, Erwin Hanson, with Evelyn May Gooding and Julia Mildred Lake and her escort, James Stein.

THE KING FULFILLS A PROMISE

Prince Otto tells his story and shows the branches and invisible coat to prove the truth of his adventure to the King, to the Chancellor, Harold Fulfer, and the noble Knights, Ray Danielson, Arthur Arnold, Eugene LaBauer, John Reeves, and Richard Workman. Inspired by the tale were the gentle ladies, Norma Graves, Lois Jones, Cleone Workman, Beatrice Merryman, Zelma Taborn and Helen Strode. All the members of the family, Duke Robert Ely and Duchess Eleanor Brener, their three daughters, Louise Westerbeek, Eva Ostema, and Dorothy Singbusch, Duchess Edna Pratt, the King's sister, Princesses, Marie Sass, Mary O'Connor, Phyllis Lovingfoss, Lola Robertson, Clara Beth Huckins, cousins of the twelve princesses were there. Many came from Workwell especially to hear the Prince's story.

The King rejoices and proclaims that the wedding will be set for one fortnight from that very day.

THE WEDDING PREPARATIONS

The King calls together a committee consisting of Sirs, Phillip Reichman, Francis Dunlap, and Bruce Whiteside, Ladies, Helen Moore, Grace Shanks, Dorothy Madix, and Frances Moore to supervise the preparations. They in turn appoint two interior decorators, Louis Irle and Merle Edmiston, to prepare the interior of the castle; and landscape architects Walter Foster, Laurence Lindsey, Gordon Grubb, and Maurice Marshall, to prepare the garden where the wedding is to take place. They all work hard and prepare the castle and grounds. The garden is fixed with trellisses and roses into a beautiful bower to represent the cathedral.

Such a bustle and a scurrying was never seen. Fairies, elves, butlers and maids hurry here and there to do some task. Such smells that issued from the castle kitchen were never heard of before.

THE GREAT DAY DAWNS

The wedding day arrives! Everyone is excitedly hurrying over the grounds and the castle, putting the last touches to the decorations. Princess Jane can hardly bear to have anyone say anything about Prince Otto because she wants to see him so, and it is bad luck for the bride to see the bridegroom on the day of the wedding until the wedding march starts.

THE PROCESSION BEGINS

Just as the procession starts to go up the path to the altar where the preacher, William Nagel, awaits them, such a terrible roar is heard that it fairly shakes the foundations of the castle. The ladies in waiting, Bernice Smith, Maurice Watchorn, Margaret Anderson, Ferne Bialeshki, Ann Goldstein, Emily Belshaw, Marjorie Bassett, and Helen Hagenbace are so terrified that they break out of the procession and run screaming to the protecting gentlemen of the wedding party. Meanwhile the maid of honor and the baby flower girls, Katherine Donlevy, June La horst, Margaret Croft, and Rosemary Sherman are so frightened they stand as if in a trance. The sudden commotion heard, Francis Leach looks so small and so pitiful in his fright that King Jewett picks him up and puts him in his pocket. Every one awaits the coming of this terrible noise maker.

A FRIEND

THE ARRIVAL OF THE MONSTER

As the wedding party stands waiting for the appearance of the monster they hear another roar, more terrible than the first and also closer to the castle wall. Prince Ott, places his fiancée into the arms of her father and goes toward the castle wall. Suddenly a terrific heat comes over the castle and a horrible dragon appears, fire streaming from his nostrils and his eyes with revenge.

THE FIGHT

As the horrible dragon draws closer, Prince Otto motions to the rest of the wedding party to go into the castle. He unsheathes his sword.

With another roar the monster charges straight at the waiting prince, who strikes at it with his sword. An awful struggle then ensues. Backwards and forwards the two go, first the dragon seems to be winning, then the prince. The prince is breathing hard and has a great gash along his arm, caused by the dragon's claws, while the dragon has several large wounds in his sides, ripped there by Prince Otto's sword.

Just as the prince is ready to strike off the dragon's head, the dragon suddenly veers to one side and strikes at him with his claws. He misses the prince and is felled with a swift blow from Otto's sword.

THE WEDDING

As the Prince strikes the fatal blow, the Princess runs to him and is caught in his embrace. He is then taken into the castle and his wounds are dressed. The dragon is removed, and the garden is set in readiness for the wedding, which is to take place the next day.

Finally the hour for the wedding approaches. Prince Otto and his happy bride walk up to the altar where the vows are read. After that the king is obliged to accept the couple with one-half the kingdom, in return for the Prince's heroism in killing the dragon, the monster that had ravaged the land for years.

The young couple build a beautiful castle in their kingdom and call it the 'Castle of Cole' in memory of Jane's father. There they live happily ever after.

When you need advertising, go to a printer who advertises!

You would not patronize a druggist who refuses to take his own medicine nor a restaurant proprietor who eats out. When buying advertising, select a printer who knows from experience and test how to prepare advertising effectively, resultfully!

The printer who prepares printed salesmanship completely, from the inception of ideas to the printing and mailing of the completed pieces, who has had years of experience in this highly specialized kind of work, is obviously in a favorable position to analyze your sales problem, determine what specific thing should be done to overcome sales resistance, and prepare the sales appeal that will overcome it. He prints the message attractively and forcefully so that it will be read by the greatest number of people. Such a service as this is offered you by the Flanigan-Pearson Company. In every business there are sales problems that baffle solution. Let us help you solve yours.
